National Night Out August 3

National Night Out is an annual nationwide event, held on the first Tuesday in August. It is a "night out against crime," designed to increase crime and drug prevention awareness within the community. The event is sponsored by the National Association of Town Watch (NATW), among communities from all 50 states, Canada, and military bases worldwide.

Here in GTMO, as well as other communities, some other important goals of this event are to help generate support for, and participation in anti-crime efforts, and to strengthen relations between Security department personnel and GTMO residents.

This year, National Night Out is Tuesday, August 3 at Cooper Field from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Some tentatively scheduled events include: an emergency and military vehicle parade along Sherman Avenue, Kittery Beach Road, and through the housing areas with lights and sirens on; a live radio station broadcast; game booths with prizes; a bouncer; Security, Fire, and Medical emergency vehicle static displays; children's fingerprinting table; Security bicycle demonstration; Coast Guard Security boat (trailered) with weapons mounted; mobile observation tower; a live pepper spray demonstration; a military working dog demonstration and lots more.

This free event is co-sponsored by the Naval Station Security Department and Crimebusters Organization. Guests will receive two tickets, one for food, and one for our free door-prize drawings.

Bring yourself, family, friends, and enjoy the "Night Out!"

Family Visits Refurbished Monument

In a world with a population in the billions, sometimes the phrase “It’s a small world” can seem like an oxymoron. However, in the case of MA2 Grady Hood and his wife, Kristen, the phrase rings true.

While visiting with family, Hood met Daniel Labelle, the spouse of one of his wife’s cousins. When Labelle learned that Hood was stationed in GTMO, he mentioned that his sister, Ann Terrell, had also served here and had died in a car accident. Labelle went on to talk about a monument that, although he had never seen, was supposed to be on the base.

Soon, the Hoods were on a search and eventually located the monument across from the base’s ceramics shop – a statue of a woman soldier surrounded by an eagle and a flag.

After recruiting a small volunteer detail and conducting a clean-up of the monument, Hood invited Ann’s parents to Guantanamo Bay this past week to view it in person.

“The parents were unaware of the monument until approximately two years ago; they heard about it through the Army. They had never seen it, nor had they seen any pictures of it,” said Hood. “It was very emotional for them, a lot of heartache and pain resurfaced for them. They were very appreciative of the opportunity to be able to get some answers and add a little more closure to the tragedy.”

Spc. Ann Terrell was deployed here with the Joint Task Force 160’s 64th Joint Logistic Support Group, during the Haitian uprising in 1995. Arriving on station in early March 1995, she was only two days into her third week here when she was killed in a government tractor trailer accident just to the left of where the monument now stands.

When passing the monument, many residents may also notice a slight difference in appearance. Once all white, the Hoods, along with Ann’s parents, Victor and Lien Labelle, repainted much of the monument in color and added bright, colorful flowers. Staff Sgt. William Griffin and Spc. Natalio Ruberia of JTF Guantanamo J4 Operations also helped in the cleaning and repainting the white areas. Restoration of the carvings and eagle will be completed by Fire Inspector Roger Jeffries.

The Hoods would like to thank everyone who participated in the last-minute arrangements for the memorial services that was held Monday, July 19. Hood said, “The family was very touched by the support and respect everyone displayed by their presence.”

FFSC Celebrates Silver Anniversary

The Fleet and Family Support Center (FFSC) has helped thousands of military families since opening its doors 25 years ago. July marks the Center’s 25th anniversary.

The first FFSCs opened in San Diego and Norfolk in 1979 and were called Family Service Centers. Initially, the centers provided a sort of one-stop shopping, offering information and referral, counseling and a 24-hour hotline staffed by trained senior petty officers and Marine sergeants. Today, the FFSC offers 67 delivery sites worldwide and 14 core programs, including Personal Financial Management, Relocation Assistance and the Transition Assistance

Management Program.

According to Navy Personnel Command (NPC), usage of Navy-wide FFSC services is at an all-time high. NPC released the FFSC’s 2003 utilization figures, which show more than 4.3 million service contacts at the 55 FFSC’s worldwide – a 16.8 increase over the previous year.

FFSC services are a free benefit to all service members and their families, including activated Reservists, retirees and Department of Defense civilians in overseas locations.

GTMO’s FFSC is planning a cake cutting ceremony next week to celebrate the Silver Anniversary. Watch for details.

Highlights of the past 25 years

- 1979 - The first Family Service Center (FSC) opens
- 1982 - The first overseas FSC opens
- 1985 - FSC initiates Spouse Employment Assistance Program
- 1989 - FSC crisis response service begins
- 1990 - FSC launches Personal Financial Management Program
- 1994 - Sexual Assault Victim Intervention Program begins
- 2001 - FSC changes its name to Fleet & Family Support Center

Marines Leave Their Mark

Prior to returning to Norfolk, Va., this week, the Marines of 1st Fleet Antiterrorism Security Team (FAST), 7th Platoon, got a chance to show their creative side and still put to use those highly regarded Marine teamwork skills. The group gathered at the Leeward Ferry Landing to give a much needed facelift to the base's F-4N Phantom static display.

After years in the GTMO sun the aircraft had begun to blend into the background with its faded black-and-gray paint job. Upon first arriving in GTMO, Capt. Hunter Rawlings, 7th Platoon commander, noticed the plane's poor exterior condition. He began speaking with Sgt. Christopher Carney, 3rd Squad leader, about sprucing up the aircraft.

Cpl. Raymond Harrison and Lance Cpls. Brandon Millitello and Andrew Bloomer paint a wing of the F-4N using Navy paint and Marine Corps muscle. Far right: Project leader, Sgt. Christopher Carney, provided guidance and direction for all the Marines working on the project. Below: The hot sun didn't seem to phase the Marines as they worked hard to transform aircraft in to an eye-catching display.

Taking the lead, Carney, an aviation buff, did some research on the aircraft and chose a tri-color paint scheme pattern. Traditionally an Air Force pattern, both Carney and Rawlings felt the design was a very motivating and historically accurate. Together, they submitted a proposal to supply the labor if the base would supply the paint. The Commanding Officer, Capt. Les McCoy, agreed to the proposal and the group got to work on July 19.

In the end, the display will be a joint-service creation to represent the base's diverse military service climate.

Carney also explained that the 7th Platoon will be adding their lucky "Shamrock 7," which is the platoon logo, and that of VMF-333, a squadron from Beaufort, N.C., which flew from GTMO during the embargo of Cuba and was also the

Miss Universe, Miss USA, Miss Teen USA Visit GTMO

This week, service members and residents of Guantanamo Bay were treated to a special USO/Armed Forces Entertainment tour featuring the newly-crowned Miss Universe, Jennifer Hawkins; Miss USA, Shandi Finnessey; and Miss Teen USA, Tami Farrell. In addition to visiting several job posts, shaking hands and dining with service members, visiting the children at the Child Development and Youth Centers, the trio of pageant winners posed for pictures and provided a great morale boost to troops stationed far from home.

Jennifer Hawkins, Miss Universe 2004, a 20-year-old model from Sydney, Australia, was crowned June 1 in Quito, Ecuador. During her year-long reign, she will focus on increasing awareness about HIV/AIDS and the research needed to find a cure. Additionally, she will serve as an ambassador for several organizations including YouthAIDS, the Global Health Council and the Elizabeth Glaser Pediatric AIDS Foundation.

Shandi Finnessey, Miss USA 2004, recently returned from Korea, where she participated on the Wayne Newton July 4th holiday tour. With more than 13 million viewers watching, the 26-year-old from St. Louis became the first Miss Missouri USA to earn the title of Miss USA on April 12, 2004. Finnessey will serve as an advocate for breast and ovarian cancer education, research and legislation. A published author, she will also travel the country in support of individuals with mental challenges.

After being crowned last August, Tami Farrell, Miss Teen USA 2003, has spent her reign as a champion for youth causes, self-esteem issues, anti-violence and anti-drug campaigns. Working with several organizations, including SHiNE (Seeking Harmony in Neighborhoods Everyday), D.A.R.E. and MADD, the Phoenix, Ore., native has encouraged teenagers to steer away from drugs, stay in school, and live a healthy and productive life.

For 63 years, the USO (United Service Organizations) has brought a touch of home to America's military personnel. For more information on the USO, please visit our Web site at www.uso.org.

Upon arrival, Miss Universe, Jennifer Hawkins; Miss USA, Shandi Finnessey; and Miss Teen USA, Tami Farrell; stopped to greet and pose for photos with some of the Marines from 1st Fleet Antiterrorism Security Team (FAST), 7th Platoon. The women complimented the Marines on their volunteer efforts in repainting the F-4N Phantom static display at the Leeward Ferry Landing.

"Lucky Shamrock" squadron. The names of the Navy base's Commanding and Executive Officers will remain on the front sides. Carney went on to add that at one point in history, the Navy, Marines and Air Force were using the F-4N.

As an added bonus to all their hard work, the Platoon got a surprise visit from Miss Universe Jennifer Hawkins, Miss USA Shandi Finnessey, and Miss Teen USA Tami Farrell. The trio stopped by to encourage the Marines and compliment them on the work.

According to Rawlings, "The intent of the paint job is not only give something back to the base, but to give the Platoon a sense of volunteerism, and also to beautify the base through a project with a pattern representing all services working together. When complete, the aircraft should be a good representation of the base, greeting all newcomers, and farewelling all those departing our base."

Enjoy the Beaches of GTMO - Know the Rules

The use of the parks, beaches and waters in and around Guantanamo Bay is a privilege that carries a responsibility to preserve the fragile ecological balance of these areas.

The GTMO beaches are beautiful, relaxing and fun! The Ombudsmen would like to take this opportunity to remind you that while going to the beaches, and enjoying the many other outdoor resources, it is important to follow the rules and leave the areas in a good condition.

Cuzco and Blue Beach are both considered Wildlife Sanctuaries and Marine Replenishment Zones. Both beaches are off limits to all personnel unless permission is granted by the Commanding Officer. Even with permission, there are still strict rules to follow. These rules can be found in the Outdoor Recreation and Wildlife Instruction for Naval Station GTMO (1710.10J).

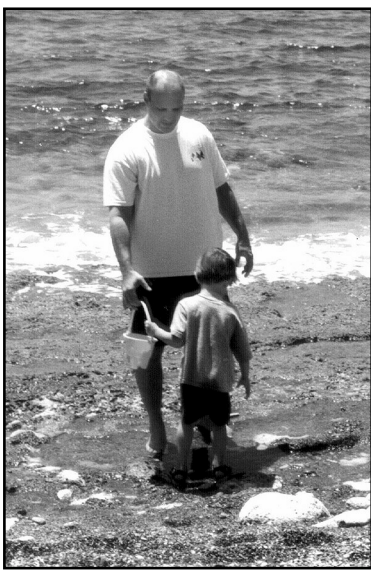

Public beaches include: Cable Beach, Chapman Beach, End of the Runway Beach, Glass Beach, Hidden Beach Leeward, Hidden Beach Windward, Pebble Beach, Ferry Landing/Ocean View Beach, Windmill Beach and Kittery Beach.

During weekdays and training exercises, Kittery Beach closes to the public. Posted signs should always reflect when the beach is open and closed.

Hours of Windmill and Kittery Beach are posted at entry gates.

Ferry Landing/Ocean View Beach is considered a family beach and as such is alcohol free.

When taking drinks and food to the beaches, please do not feed the wildlife. There have been instances when iguanas, who have become used to being fed, have become overly aggressive with families and actually jumped onto picnic benches

Other simple guidelines to follow include being courteous and respectful of the rights of others by keeping music low so as to not bother others. Don't be a litterbug! Pick up your trash before you leave (and if you see some laying around, be kind and dispose of that, too). Graffiti painting on rocks and structures is prohibited. Cliff climbing or jumping from any cliff is prohibited; people are also not permitted on cabana rooftops. Dogs are permitted in the cabana and beach areas of all public beaches, however, the owner must remain in verbal and/or physical control of the dog at all times and must clean up after their dog.

Should you wish to have a large event at public beaches (more than 20 people participating) the Security Department requires 48 hours notice before your scheduled event.

Camping is permitted at Cable and Chapman Beaches, Hidden Beach Leeward, Hospital Cay, Phillips Park, and Ocean View, however, the Security Department must be notified 48 hours in advance. If you wish to have a campfire, you must obtain a permit from the Fire Department 48 hours in advance, as well. Bonfire permits require seven days prior notice. Check with the Fire Department for more information on which beaches bonfires are allowed.

If you're not familiar with the 1710.10J instruction for GTMO, please read it as soon as you can. Copies are passed out during Base Indoc, posted at MWR facilities, the Dive Shop and the Reef Raiders Dive Club. If you have trouble locating one, please contact any Ombudsman or ask your chain of command. Being informed about the rules for GTMO is your responsibility!

Diving Tips

Diving at the beaches is a popular pastime with many base residents. The Reef Raiders Dive Club encourages all divers to practice all safety guidelines and offers the following tips:

Did you know that, per COMNAVBSEG TMOINST 1710.10J, you are required to have a minimum of 500psi remaining tank pressure at the end of a dive?

Were you also aware you must wear a buoyancy compensating device (BCD) capable of both oral and auxiliary low-pressure inflation?

You must also have the following equipment when scuba diving: a pressure gauge, a depth gauge, a timing device, quick release weights, and a surface signaling device such as a whistle.

The instruction also highly recommends you carry an alternative air source, an underwater (U/W) signaling device (tank knocker or low-pressure hose squawker), an U/W light, and a portable dive flag.

For more information or to ask any diving related question, contact Reef Raiders Dive Club at 7315 or 5666, or Ocean Enterprises Dive Shop at 5336.
